Omnibus dormio.

THERE is nothing more common, than to Nod over a Standiſh, and to write out ſeveral Sheets of Paper (as it were) in one's Sleep, while the Author imagines himſelf broad awake. On the contrary, our real Slumbers may ſometimes contribute to our Inſtruction; and a Morning may be imploy'd to good Purpoſe in penning a Dream of the foregoing Night; as I hope will appear to my Readers on their peruſal of the following Viſion.

Laſt Night I went to Bed with a calm unruffled Mind, after the Buſineſs of the Day; the natural Conſequence of Health, and Innocence, the two ſolid Bleſſings of Life. In my Sleep, I fancied my ſelf in the midſt of a lonely, delightful Country Land-ſchape, in the Spring of the Year. The freſhneſs of the Greens, the luxuriancy of the Flowers, and the Melody of the Birds, all conſpired to pleaſe me. While I entertained my ſelf with the Proſpect, a Perſon, like a Bride, approached me: She was dreſſed in a yellow Silk, with a Coronet of Mirtle interwove with Flowers on her Head. Nothing was wanting before to make my Happineſs complete but a Companion: Tranſported at the Approach of ſo fair a Creature, I ſeized her Hand, which ſhe ſeemed not to diſapprove. I led her to a riſing Ground, where the Trees made a thick Shade: We ſeated our ſelves on a Bed of Violets; and I began to addreſs her with a Tenderneſs, which my Youth had never felt before.

In that Moment two Women, different in their Mien and Habit, intruded upon our Retirement: The one appeared in full Bloom, her Cheeks dimpled with Smiles, her Hair flowing in the Wind, and her Limbs expoſed to Sight: There was an affected Levity in her Geſtures, and ſhe diſcovered a Solicitouſneſs to pleaſe, in Spight of her ſeeming Negligence. The other came on with a more regular, majeſtick Pace: She wore a white unſpotted Veil, thro' which nevertheleſs it was eaſy to obſerve an uncommon Dignity in all her Motions.

The gay Appearance of the Firſt was as agreeable to me, as the awful Preſence of the Laſt was unwelcome. Her Looks as ſhe lifted her Veil, gave a Check to my Tranſports; while the Other ſmiled upon me with Approbation. They both now conteſted, who ſhould accoſt me firſt: Whereupon the airy Perſon thus beſpoke the Matronlike Female.

Why ſhould you break in upon the Solitude, and interrupt the Happineſs of this youthful Pair? Is it not ſufficient, that you have your Votaries amongſt Perſons of maturer Years; and are adored by hoary Heads? Be happy (continued ſhe, turning to us) if Love can make you ſo; you are in the prime of Life; and the preſent Seaſon is indulgent to your Wiſhes.

While ſhe ſpoke, the whole Creation ſeemed to rejoice: My Heart was fired into Rapture; and I gazed on her with Satisfaction. The Other, obſerving my manifeſt Diſlike of her, caſt on me a Look of Compaſſion, and diſappeared.

All Reſtraint removed, I was now happy in my Imagination beyond Expreſſion. I reproached my own Folly for waſting ſo many irretrievable Days in Labour, in Application of Thought, and in ſtudying the romantick Viſions of Philoſophy: I reflected on the ſhort remaining Space of my Youth, and the exquiſite Charms of the lovely Object, that lay beſide me; who ſeemed to court my Affection, and with longing Eyes to chide my Delays.

Abandoned to my preſent Bliſs, I attempted the moſt endearing Careſſes; when inſtantly I heard a violent Noiſe, as if the Elements were all at Variance; the Sky was darkened; Lightning flaſhed from the Clouds; the Flowers withered; the Verdure of the Fields was entirely blaſted; and the Raven, and the Owl pearched over me with their boading Notes. Struck with Horror at the ſudden Change, I ſought for the Perſon whoſe Speech had animated me before: But the Phantome had vaniſhed. This added to my Dread; and I felt an immediate Averſion for the Beauty, I purpoſed to take into my Arms: At the ſame Time, I had the Mortification to perceive her Heart as averſe to me.

When our common Terror was now grown to the Height, the Uproar and the Darkneſs increaſing upon us, a gentle Gleam of Light broke faintly thro' the Gloom, and I could perceive the Perſon coming towards us, whom in the Security of our Joys, we had rejected. Hereupon, I recollected the compaſſionate Look with which ſhe left us, and entertained ſome Hopes of Succour, of which we then ſtood in the utmoſt Need; for the Scene of Horror that ſurrounded us, had reduced us not only to deſpiſe each the other, but to abhor even our ſelves.

As ſhe drew near, ſhe threw up her Veil, and diſcloſed a Countenance full of ſweetneſs and compoſure, ſuch a Mixture as ariſes from Prudence and Innocence united. The violent Convulſions of Nature did not diſcompoſe her Looks. We immediately proſtrated our ſelves at her Feet; when ſhe reached out her Hand, and raiſed us with an Indulgence we little expected. The Thunder ceaſed, and the Violence of the Storm abated; then I would have excuſed the rude Treatment, ſhe had received from me: But ſhe, touched with my Grief and Confuſion, prevented me in the following Words.

It was my tender Concern for you, that brought me hither before, and the ſame Compaſſion prevailed upon me to return. I can eaſily pardon your firſt Fault; and am not ſurprized at the powerful Influence, which the Preſence of Vice had over you. Your Youth, your Inexperience, the Weakneſs of your Reaſon, and Violence of your Paſſions, all plead ſtrongly for you. But if after this ſevere Warning, you continue deaf to my Admonitions, I ſhall for ever withdraw my Protection from you.

I was preparing to reply; when ſhe prevented me again to this Effect. Remember, Promiſes in the Hour of Diſtreſs are very deceitful: They ſhew the Fear and Anguiſh, not the Reſolution, of the Soul. Take Time and Leiſure to reflect coolly on your paſt Conduct; learn the Habit of Reasoning without Passion, and your Actions then will be conformable to the Dignity of your Nature: Sudden Resolves are only the Lightnings of a dark Mind: Deliberate Counsels yield a continued Light and will conduct you safely through Life.

Reaſoning

As she spoke my Fears vanished, my Disorder ceased, and I felt my whole Anxiety relieved. I viewed my lovely Bride with new Pleasure, whose Beauty now seemed to receive a fresh Lustre; and her Eyes glanced with equal Complacency on me: When the Divine Form continued thus her Speech. ------- I come not to disunite but to cement your Loves and make them lasting. Improve your Courtship into Wedlock. Let your Inclinations and your Interest be always one: Go Hand in Hand in all your Undertakings: Make your Offspring, by your Examples, an Ornament and a Blessing to Society; and count your Children the Children of the Publick.------ At these Words she smiled on us with a superior Grace, and rising from the Ground, marked her swift Passage through the Air with a Tract of Light.

By this Time the few remaining Clouds were all dispersed; the Flowers revived; the Birds renewed their Songs; and I waked, smitten with the glorious Form of Virtue, ravished with her Counsels, and inspired with fresh Resolutions to practise what appeared so amiable in a Dream, and what I find so Reasonable now I am Awake.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

Ratisbon, Jan. 19.

SOME Days ago the Bishop of Kempstree's Brother was married at a Place not far from this City: Most of the Company who were entertained on that Occasion, fell sick presently after, and the Bishop, the Bridegroom, and five other Gentlemen are since dead. This makes it suspected, that the Wine was poisoned, or some such Villany; and this Affair is ordered to be strictly enquired into.

Vienna, Feb. 4. Yesterday the Emperor held a long Conference with his Ministers upon the present Juncture of Affairs. It is still said, that Prince Eugene of Savoy will shortly depart for Italy; and that some of the Imperial Troops which are in the Dutchy of Luxemburgh, have Orders to march thither; and that the Emperor will take into his Service six Regiments from the Princes of the Empire, which will likewise be sent into Italy, that he may not be obliged to leave the Kingdom of Hungary too much unprovided. There is a Report that the Grand Duke has offered his Imperial Majesty to maintain 16,000 Men.

Basil, Feb. 9. We have private Letters, which say the Crowns of France and Spain are using their utmost Endeavours to bring the Court of Turin into the Treaty of Seville; in order to which, his Most Christian Majesty has offered the King of Sardinia to procure him Satisfaction with Regard to some Lands he claims in the Dutchy of Milan, and that Spain shall renounce the Reversion of Sardinia.

Paris, Feb 15. Last Week the Duke of Lorrain viewed the Castles of Versailles and St. Germain en Laye; also Marli, Trianon, La Menagerie, and St. Cloude. He saw here the Royal Academy of Painting and Sculpture, and the Mint for Medals, where 4 Gold and 12 Silver Medals were struck in his Presence, and presented to his Royal Highness by M. de Costes, the Director. Thus having seen all that is most curious in this City, paid Visits to all the Princes and Princesses of the Blood, and received their Visits in the Royal Palace, he set out this Morning on his Return Home, well pleased with the Honours shewn him at this Court. The King has presented the Duke of Lorrain with 8 fine Pieces of Tapestry, in Imitation of the Works of Raphael, heighten'd with Gold, worth above 150,000 Livres. The Duke of Lorrain gave a Gold Watch, Value 2000 Livres, to the King's Equerry who brought to him a Horse each Time he was a hunting with the King, 20 Louis d'Ors to the Huntsman who attended him, and 100 Louis d'Ors to the Grooms of the 2 Equerries. On the 8th in the Morning, the Queen was let Blood by way of Precaution, upon Account of her Pregnancy. The 10th, the Dauphine cut 2 Teeth, and next Day a Third, without any Uneasiness, which rarely happens to one of his Age. It is advised from Lisbon, that the Portuguese have discovered in Brazil, not far from the River Janiero, a Mine that abounds with Diamonds.

Petersburgh, Feb. 25. According to the last Letters from Moscow, the new Empress was approached within 40 Werstes of that Capital; so that she was daily expected there. Those who personally know her Imperial Majesty, assure us, that she is not only a beautiful and well made Princess, but has such Talents and Qualifications for Government, that there is the greatest Appearance that her Reign will be happy and prosperous to her self and her Subjects: Moreover, she has a great Regard and Esteem for Foreigners.

Hague, March 2. N.S. The Eyes of all Europe are now turned towards Rome, to see what Sort of a Pope we shall have next; for according to the Predictions of a certain Bishop, the Pontiff that is next to ascend the Throne, is now to have for his Motto, Bestia Insatiabilis, or the Insatiable Beast, if such Predictions fall so pat to the Time, that they can be applied to the Person; for the same Bishop gave the last defunct Pope the Motto of Miles in Bello, or a Soldier in War, which every Body knows did not in the least point out the Character of Benedict XIII. unless Bello may be there construed into a Spiritual Warfare, and so his unwearied Exercises in the Duties of his Function be figured by the Soldiers Fatigues in the Field: But this is a Strain, of which the prophetick Bishop's Reveries may hardly be deemed worthy. However, as the Treaty of Seville has effectually divided the Emperor and Spain, and broke a Knot that was once thought so formidable, it may be a pretty while before our Curiosity with regard to the Election of a Pope is satisfied; the Marquis de Monteleone being gone from Venice to Rome, to put the Negative upon all such Cardinals as he shall judge to be in the Emperor's Interest; and his Imperial Majesty returning the Compliment by sending the Count de Colaldo to Rome, to give his Negative to the Cardinals tainted with the least Suspicion of favouring France or Spain; and thus the Conclave will be perhaps none of the shortest.

March, 24. N.S. What is to be done in the Affair between the Courts of Hanover and Berlin, we shall not take upon us to say, every Post almost contradicting the other upon that Subject. But as it is certain that new Ministers are upon the Road to Berlin, both on the Part of his Britannick Majesty and of this State, it will not be long before Peace or War will break out on that Side. The former we have the greater Reason to hope, because the King of Prussia's favourite View being to the Succession of the Dutchies of Berg and Juliers, he is intent upon having such a Number of Troops in the Dutchy of Cleves, that he might at any Time draw up an Army of 25 or 30,000 Men into the Field, to possess themselves of the said two Dutchies, in case of the Elector Palatine's Death.

Our last Letters from Moscow are somewhat embarassing upon the Article of the Government there, the Form of which seems to have undergone no inconsiderable Change. For not only a Manifesto is published in the Name of the Senate, to notify the Death of the late Czar, and the Accession of her present Czarian Majesty to the Throne; but they likewise put out a new Form of the Titles the new Czarina is to make use of; also those to be given to the Council of War, and the other High Colleges in the Imperial Ordinances; and lastly, a Formulary for the Subjects to observe in their Petitions and Addresses. They add, that her Czarian Majesty had signed an Instrument for continuing the present Officers, Civil and Military, in their Posts, till her Pleasure be further signified; but that it was really reported, the Pension settled upon the late Czar's Bride, was intirely revoked. In Conclusion they inform us, that General Jagozinski was not arrested for any Cabals in favour of the Princess Elizabeth, as common Fame would have it; but that it was for speaking his Mind too freely against curtailing the Despotick Power of the present Czarina; and if that be the Case, he is safe enough: Her Majesty will, no doubt, be graciously pleased to pardon him.

Rome, March 11. There never was seen so great a Change in any See as in the present; all those who had obtained Offices by Means of any Favourites of the deceased Pope, being either suspended or deprived of their Employs; several are cited before the Congregation of Cardinals, and others are actually under Arrest: And we learn from Benevento, that the Inhabitants of that City have refused to receive ceive the Beneventines who were in the Pope's Service. Cardinal Coscia, it seems, desired the Protection of the Imperial Ambassador, and others, but being denied, he was obliged to retire incognito, in a very mean Habit, and in Disguise.

Leghorn, March 11. Our last Letters from Cadiz and Barcelona, confirm the great Preparations there for the Imbarkation of Spanish Troops.

Bologna, March 14. The Cardinals of the Creation of Pope Benedict XIII. keep very much united; and it is believed the Election will fall on Cardinal Marefoschi of Macerata, who is of the last Creation.

LONDON, Jan. 12.

On Saturday last Mr. Joshua Gee, being introduced by his Grace the Duke of Hamilton, presented to his Majesty the Copy of a Book, entitled, The Trade and Navigation of Great Britain, considered, &c. which his Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously: After which he presented a like Copy to her Majesty, being introduced by the Right Hon. the Earl of Grantham, her Majesty's Lord Chamberlain; as also a like Copy to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales; and her Majesty and his Royal Highness were both pleased to receive them very graciously.

From the Craftsman, Jan. 27.

To CALEB D'ANVERS, Esq;

On the TREATY lately concluded at SEVILLE.

THOU perverse, adverse, Caleb D'Anvers,
Were I a Poet, to command Verse,
With Satire, would I so ha-rass you,
That you should hang your self, you Ass you;
Pen ne'er should stop, nor Tongue e'er faulter,
Till I had brought thee to a Halter,
And got thy Head, set on a tall Pole,
For what you've wrote, 'gainst Master W——
W—— so famous in all Nations,
For steady, wise Negotiations;
In France and Spain, by every Boy, Sir,
Call'd, De la grand Bretagne Viceroy, Sir;
By Hollanders, and many more Folk,
Call'd, Hogan Mogan Heer van N——k;
Swedes raise him up, to God knows what, Sir,
Danes term him Groota Potentate, Sir;
And to be plain, all Europe over,
He's known as well, as in H--v--r;
Yet t'other Day, you had the Face, Sir,
Plainly to call him Robin Brass, Sir.
Will you ne'er leave your usual Tricks, Sir,
Of kicking 'gainst sharp-pointed Pricks, Sir?
As you stood up for Gibraltar, Sir,
And rail'd against our peaceful War, Sir,
Will you go on and never cease, Sir,
But dare to blame our warlike Peace, Sir?
Must I, at length, be forc'd to go, Sir,
To see you, as I did Defoe, Sir,
Or Mist, that Brother of Perdition,
In Pillory for base Sedition?
No, Pillory's too good for Fellows,
Who stead of Pensions, chuse the Gallows.
Yet Caleb, I'll ne'er mince the Matter;
Than all thy Tribe I like the better;
And if you'll but take my Advice, Sir,
I'll do your Business, in a trice, Sir.
In any Thing you may command me,
With W—— I'm as great as can be;
As t'other Day we play'd at Drafts, Man,
He bid Horatio read your Craftsman,
And smiling said, it was a Pity
The Man was blind, and yet so witty;
Therefore, I'll tell you, what I want, Sir,
Is straightway that you would recant, Sir;
And that you'd turn your Wit and Satire,
To other Subjects, other Matter,
Cry W—— up, in Verse and Prose, Sir,
Flatter his Friends, revile his Foes, Sir,
Extol his Peace, and Observations
On his own great Administrations;
Turn Coat, Pen, Tongue; in short be wise, Sir;
Praise Gothick Schemes and French Allies, Sir;
And write (what yet was ne'er done) Answers
To your own Works, sign'd Caleb D'Anvers.

Feb. 7. On Saturday last a considerable Number of Dealers in Bone-lace from the Counties of Bucks, Northampton and Bedford, waited on their Majesties, being introduced by the Lord Grantham to his Majesty, and by the Hon. Mrs. Clayton to her Majesty, with a Petition, in Behalf of their Manufacture, and carried with them a Parcel of Lace to shew the Perfection they had brought it to, and their Majesties shewed their Royal Intentions to encourage the British Manufacture, by receiving them very graciously, and bought a considerable Quantity for the Use of the Royal Family; and several Ladies followed the Royal Example. The said Dealers had the Honour to kiss their Majesties Hands.

We hear her Majesty hath purchased the House and Gardens lately belonging to Sir Charles Ayres, deceased at Kew Green.

Feb. 14. On Wednesday Night was interred at St. Margaret's in Westminster, in one Grave, Mr. Jackson and his Wife, who died at their House in King-street, within a few Hours of each other.

By our last Letters from Spain we are informed, that his Catholick Majesty designs to have shortly an Interview with the King of Portugal; and the Spanish Court are apprehensive that he intends to take that Opportunity of abdicating the Crown a 2d Time, to which he seems very much inclined.

Feb. 21. On Monday between 9 and 10 in the Forenoon, came on before the Lord Chief Justice Eyre in the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, the great Trial between the Right Hon. the Lord Abergavenny, Plaintiff, and R. Liddell, Esq; Defendant, for the latter's having had criminal Conversation with the late Wife of the said Nobleman; there were 9 Witnesses to prove the Fact; and the Defendant called 4 Noble Peers to his general Character; the Hearing lasted many Hours, and the Jury (of which Mr. Lloyd, Brewer of Hungerford Market, was Foreman) brought in a Verdict of 10,000 l. Damages for the Plaintiff.

Last Sunday Morning died the Rev. Dr. Thomas Bray, Minister of St. Buttolph Aldgate, in the 73d Year of his Age, after a long Asthmatick Indisposition, and other Infirmities incident to old Age: He had been, for several Years an indefatigable Promoter of many excellent Designs for the Service of Religion and the publick Good: About 30 Years ago he was employ'd by Dr. Compton, late Bishop of London, as his Lordship's Commissary in Maryland, where he obtained several Acts of the Government for supporting the Clergy and Schools in that Province, which subsist to this Day: At his Return from that Service he formed the Design, and was the principal Solicitor for procuring the Charter of the Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts: He contrived, and by the Assistance of his Friends, founded, in Great Britain and the Plantations, above 150 Parochial Libraries, from 10 l. to fifty Pounds Value, those in South Britain being secured to Posterity by an Act of Parliament passed for that Purpose in the Year 1708. To say no more, he was a most compassionate Solicitor in Behalf of poor Prisoners, particularly those at Whitechapel and the Marshalsea, where the Prisoners being very numerous, and exposed to great Hardships, had for some Years past a plentiful Dinner provided once a Week at the Expence of several charitable Persons by the Doctor's Instigation, till the late Act for relieving all the Gaols in the Kingdom, set them at Liberty.

Aldgate is only a Curacy of 8 l. per Ann. the rest accrues to the Minister by Surplice Fees and voluntary Subscriptions; scriptions: The Rev. Mr. Kinnaſton of Covent-Garden is the Patron, and deſigns to take the Living himſelf, he having the great Tithes.

March 26. Arthur Stert, Eſq; one of the Repreſentatives in Parliament for Plymouth, and John Goddard, Eſq; a Repreſentative for Tregony, two very eminent Merchants, and Mr. Keen, his Majeſty's Miniſter at the Court of Spain, are appointed Commiſſaries on the Part of Great Britain, for ſettling and adjuſting the different Demands and Pretenſions of Great Britain and Spain on each other, agreeable to the Treaty lately concluded at Seville.

Yeſterday there was a Report that the Prince of Naſſau Frieſland was dead in Holland.

BOSTON, June 8.

We have Advice from Martineco, That the General having Occaſion to go down from that Iſland to Guardelope, embark'd in a Sloop there, with a Number of Men and Officers on board; and after ſome time order'd the Sloop back to Martineco, himſelf ſtaying at Guardelope: That in their Return the Sloops Company roſe upon the Officers, kill'd one of them with another Man, ſubjected the reſt, and then proceeded to St. Thomas's, where they were taken up. The General being inform'd of this at his Return, ſent another Sloop of Force to St. Thomas's to bring them up to Martineco, where they were try'd for Murder and Piracy, and 24 of them condemned to die; of which Number, 12, who were all Frenchmen, were executed in one Day, their Hands being firſt cut off, 9 of them were rack'd to Death, and 3 hang'd: The next Day the other 12, who were all Swiſs, were executed; and theſe likewiſe having their Hands firſt cut off, were ſome of them rack'd to Death, ſome ſaw'd aſunder, and the reſt hang'd; which was ſometime in February laſt; and the Gentleman who gives us this Relation was an Eye-witneſs of the Execution.
